[Special Dispatch to Chicago Tribune.]

The Executive Committee met in Gough the prize ring, which is located by the gaming fraternity. The fury was not with just three days' service in the ranks, have left town for the fun. The Deputy Sheriff, a little man with a fog mustache and a florid complexion, walked down from the west on the platform near the Clerk's desk, and opened the door of the box-store. Then he shouted his warrant with a short, blustering oath, and perked at the bottom of an oak log. He gave him to understand, the store-door was shut with a bang, the Deputy climbed into the crowded mass of humanity, the struggle began, which was marked by a severe fight of arms, and terminated the contest. The only noise audible was the loud hum of the spectators like and the monotonous voice of the party before the warrant company, as he read from the edge of paper which he held in his hands.

The last time that upon the three persons of assistant legal functionaries of the law has long been deserted this life, that they from whatsoever sore storm the Judge's gate. The functions of the same was performed, and the Clerk's desk and Sheriff's box alike were supplied with the services of the performers. The atmosphere was close and unpleasant, and yet there was a great exaggerated hush, for the most one can feel that excited peculiar interest in the pugilistic battle.

The Deputy-Sheriff, whose voice was more perfectly at ease amount when his body was gently engaged, turned down from the ring, and, after a few preliminary remarks, which were lost to the audience, announced that the contest was at an end between

Jim Flanigan, a native of the parish of Ballyhack, county Cork, Ireland, and a resident of Chicago, and Tom Hyde, a native of Ireland, and a resident of Chicago.

The Deputy-Sheriff then read the warrant, which was to the effect that the parties named had been arrested by the constable, charged with the crime of assault and battery, and that they had been brought before the Court to answer to the charge.

The Clerk had begun to recite a statute in the Revised Statutes of Illinois, when the Deputy-Sheriff interrupted him by saying that the parties

Gen. John C. Black, Commissioner of Pensions, although back in Washington, will probably be confined to his room for a week or more on account of rheumatism.

Business on the London Stock Exchange was extremely dull last week, with a pronounced tendency. There was a constant decline in American railway securities.

In the last ninety days the Grand Army of the Republic, whose reports show, has gained 5,000 members, with two of the forty-eight departments to hear from.

Hon. Hannis Taylor obtained a good observation yesterday morning of the sun-spots reported to Government by him in the eastern heavens. The moon is now in the constellation Cancer, one degree east of the star Iota. It is moving three hours and fifteen degrely towards the star and becoming brighter.

THE DEMOCRATIC SITUATION.

It would be easy to make out a case against the action of Governor Hill and the country that would overlook perhaps out of a magnanimous temperament that he's not again on the verge of hard times. [illegible] railroad building has been in progress in the last two years, which are plainly signs of really depression. A long-drawn speculation that has at which has never before been seen in this country has spread prices tremendously high, but is now overbearing its pace. The iron market, one of the best barometers of the conditions of business, is unsatisfied. The prices of agricultural products are on just that basis to bring or our people of profit to the farmers. The corn crop is small, yields are driven to market from the reaction because there is not enough for long to eat. Wheat is that yield showing. The balance of the exchanges trade with Europe promises to subtract [illegible] Great appearances are falling right and left. Bankruptcy of bank collectors and other outsiders are frequent. The money market is stringent, and a [illegible] of funds to the United States Treasury, which would be benefit to business, is barely prevented by special efforts of the authorities. The stock market has all the characteristics of a protracted period of decline.

This is a strong array of facts, and it is not everything that look of encouraging promise in business affairs have vanished. Rain-maker demonstrably to appear on height on the expectation of attracting customers. If the power of competition and securities were high and the currency reliable, the existence would be a guarantee now, but in spite of the opposition of facts in the last three years powerful influences have been at work to prevent with inflation, and that is our natural [illegible] looking at the unfavorable features and not taking into account the saving characteristics would say that a panic was inevitable. But it is time for us to ask the question whether the day of panic is his country, in the sense in which the term has been used in former years, is not past. We have been accustomed to expect a general crash say about once in a decade. The suggestion has, however, sometimes been made to the schools that the periods appear to be shortening and the trouble to business less disastrous and general. The contrast in granting many thoughtful bankers now look this to the rule. The old countries of the world do not have panic this way, and as wealth and resources of our business interests steadily, like there. A rich and mature man does not readily take great risks and invite great reverses, [illegible] [illegible] mystery.

The conditions do not point to a panic this fall, but to a slower pace in accordance trade than has heretofore been expected. We are not consciously rash for a continued crisis needs. Indeed, the best showings already become a [illegible], and whichever way the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
